Russell House was Former Show Place of Harrisburg

(Editor's Note: Timmo, who usually writes this column is on vacation. Today's column is written by Bill Melton.)

MEMORIES: Remember the picture of the old house on East Locust that is being razed that ran on the front page of Tuesday's edition of The Daily Register?

Monday afternoon I went down and made a picture of the house being torn away to illustrate the work that was being done to remove unsightly buildings in our city. Tuesday the picture appeared in The Register and immediately we began to get telephone calls at the office of the "I remember when" type.

Seems that the old house was once a show place in Harrisburg, so Thursday afternoon some time was spent in talking with some of the older folks about this property.

Seems that what in recent years was known as the "Russell property" was once "The Parker House," Harrisburg's finest hotel. A Mr. and Mrs. Parker operated the hotel for some time and after his death Mrs. Parker, affectionately known as "Grandma" Parker, continued to run the hotel.

Before the turn of the century The Parker House faced east toward the depot. At that time I am told, there was no street where Gum street is now and there was a beautiful, rolling yard from the porch of the hotel to the depot and what was probably the first brick sidewalk in town connected the hotel and depot. After Gum street was laid out and other building sites sold, the hotel was turned to face on Locust street. "Uncle Billy" McNeil was in charge of the moving that turned The Parker House from facing east to facing north.

In its hey-day The Parker House was an elegant place and its dining room had a fine reputation. To eat at The Parker House was an occasion to remember and to brag about. Sunday dinner cost 25 cents—but it was pointed out Thursday afternoon that a quarter about 1900

3-Point Plan Offered in Address to UN

Secretary Blunt in Spelling Out Method To Easing Tensions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told Soviet Russia today—in polite but blunt language—the price the free world wants for stopping the cold war.

Dulles spelled out his "extremely simple method" of ending international tension in a speech prepared for delivery at the 10th anniversary meeting of the United Nations. It was:

1. Observe the charter of the United Nations.
2. Refrain from using force or threatening to use force in dealing with other countries.
3. Refrain from supporting and directing subversive activities in other countries.

One Plan Is Sufficient

"To bring the cold war to an end, seven points are not needed," Dulles said in an allusion to the seven point "peace program" proposed by Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov last Wednesday.

"This one is sufficient. It is in that spirit that we go to Geneva, and we hope to find that spirit shared."

Dulles touched on many subjects, ranging from the "abuse" of the veto, the need for collective security, "encouraging" developments in Korea, Indochina, Austria and Yugoslavia, and Soviet gestures towards Western Germany and Japan; and problems still remaining to be solved.

In dealing with the last topic, Dulles minced no words. He listed the problems as Germany, the satellite countries of Eastern Europe, Communist China, international communism and disarmament, in that order.

He said the "unnatural division" of Germany constitutes "a grave injustice" and declared it was an "evil which cannot be indefinitely prolonged."

Cites Red "Conspiracy"

Turning to the countries behind the Iron Curtain, Dulles said: "In Eastern Europe are nations, many with a long and proud record of national existence, which are in servitude. They were liberated from one despotism only to be subjected to another, in violation of solemn international undertakings."

Of Communist China, he said: "In Asia, there is a Chinese Communist regime which became an aggressor in Korea, for which

House Group Approves Debt Limit Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today approved an administration request to hold the national debt limit for another year at 281 billion dollars. The Treasury recommended this to put "pressure" on the government to economize.

The committee unanimously okayed the legislation after Treasury Secretary George Humphrey said the limit would "leave absolutely no room" in the next 12 months for Congress either to cut taxes or increase spending.

Humphrey cautioned Americans to safeguard current prosperity by exercising self-restraint in use of credit and in piling up debt. And he said it is up to the government to set an example in economy and prudence.

Humphrey said that for the long haul the 281-billion-dollar debt limit is too low. But he said the administration is willing to accept the "pressure" that limit would put on it, and upon Congress, to economize.

Congress had raised the debt limit to 281 billion dollars from 275 billion dollars last summer, but ordered that it drop back to the lower figure next Thursday, June 30—the last day of fiscal 1955.

Humphrey said the debt probably will be about $273,500,000,000 on that deadline date. The debt at latest report—June 20—was $275,700,000,000, but that included some 500 million dollars of debt not subject to the limit.

"We have lived within the limits" set by Congress last year, Humphrey told the committee, "but the basic problems are still with us. They are, in fact, even more acute this year than last."

county was separated from Gallatin county. His father, well remembered by older residents of Harrisburg was a farmer and a coffin maker. As a boy Mr. Pruett helped his father in the coffin shop which was located at the rear of the ancestral home, 301 East Church street for quite a while, then was located where the Pruett building now is and later where the Humm garage is now situated on East Poplar. The boy's job was to line the caskets and he kept as a souvenir during his whole lifetime the hammer which he used at that task.

Member of Masonic Lodge

When he became 21 years of age he joined Harrisburg Lodge No. 325 A. F. and A. M., and in 1947 this lodge honored him as a 50-year member, presenting him with a 50-year membership pin. He was a Shriner, a member of the Mississippi Valley consistory and a lifetime member of Harrisburg Lodge No. 1058 B. P. O. E.

In 1901 he married Miss Lelle Howell, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howell. With his father-in-law and Med Parish, Mr. Pruett was a partner in sinking one of the first deep mines put down in Saline county. That was the old Clifton mine at Ledford, which was sold in 1905 to the O'Garra Coal Co., forerunner of the present Sahara Coal Co. It was No. 5 in the group of mines operated by O'Garra until they were worked out.

In 1906 he built the Pruett building at the corner of Locust and Main streets, which was badly damaged by fire in 1925 and rebuilt that year. It is occupied at

Select Site for New Gas Extraction Plant at Eldorado

ELDORADO, Ill. — The John Stelle Associates have announced they have accepted an offer made by Karl Karel, president of the Eldorado Water company, for forty acres of land on the Raleigh road as the building site for the new gas extraction plant.

The plant, expected to cost approximately one million dollars, will be constructed on land near the Eldorado reservoir and is near the Big Inch gas line.

The firm of T. R. Butler and Perry Brown of Texas will build the plant and it is announced that Haskell Armitage, engineer for the firm, is expected in Eldorado early next week to begin the work.

It is hoped the plant will be in operation within 75 days after actual construction starts.

House Tables Plan to Revise Court System

Brings End to 5-Year Effort for Vote on Reform

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois House Thursday killed the plan for a new constitutional judicial article and today got ready to vote on a new revenue article, last big issue of the session.

The vote of the House Thursday to table the amendment to revise the state's court system was 74-70. Then the House made sure the bill stayed dead by voting not to reconsider its action.

The vote brought another end to the five-year effort to let the people vote on a court reform plan. The proposed amendment was drawn up in its original form by the joint committee of the Illinois and Chicago Bar Assns. Gov. William G. Stratton had made it his "number one" aim of this legislative session.

Sixty of the votes to table the court overhaul plan were cast by Democrats and Republicans warned they will make the matter a campaign issue.

Many Changes Made

Only four Chicago Democrats voted against tabling the judicial article despite the promised backing of the amendment by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The amendment had been drastically changed during four months of hearings before the House Executive committee.

As originally drawn, it would have streamlined the court system by eliminating some lower courts and leaving a simple structure of circuit or trial appellate and supreme court levels.

Most of its opposition stemmed from bar associations' original plan of having bar-lawyer committees name the candidates and having judges run for re-election only against their records, however.

This had been changed to provide for non-partisan elections patterned after the downstate city non-political elections. While few courts were eliminated under the changed plan, there still would have been a simpler, three-level structure and the Supreme Court could have administered the entire system to assign judges to work in overloaded areas and break the logjam of cases clogging certain courts.

The court revision defeat came quickly. House members expressed confusion over the thick sheaf of committee amendments, including one by Rep. Paul Powell (D-Vernon) to let future Legislatures add at any time new courts to the proposed structure.

Powell said he could "end this confusion and save time." He moved to table the resolution for the new article.

Gov. Stratton Signs Sales Tax Measures

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton Thursday signed into law the bills to increase the state sales tax by 1/2 cent to 2 1/2 per cent for two years, starting July 1 and to permit city governments to levy a 1/2-cent sales tax without referendum.

The two tax measures were both key provisions of the revenue program agreed on by the governor and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. The bills, which achieved final legislative passage Wednesday, were designed to meet urgent money needs of schools, mental hospitals and cities.

The 1/2-cent state sales tax increase is expected to give the state about 100 million dollars in added revenue for the 1955-57 biennium. Of this, about 60 million dollars will be needed for increased school aid, 25 million dollars for added costs of higher education, and 14 million dollars for mental hospital care and facilities.

Daley expects the city sales tax will give Chicago 22 million dollars of another 34 million in revenues which he says the city must have yearly. Decatur is one large downstate city which has announced intentions of passing the tax. Under a 1947 law, cities could pass the city sales tax if approved by the people at referendum. But a number of cities tried to get the measure passed and all failed.

Quintuplets Born, Four Survive

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—The four survivors of the quintuplets born here Wednesday were reported "very much alive and kicking" today by a doctor at the Salisbury Maternity Home.

"They look healthy enough at the moment," the doctor added. One of the five children born to Mrs. Judith Tandzenzi, 30, died on the 100-mile journey by road from her native Mtoko to Salisbury. She was a girl.

The remaining infants are two boys and two girls. The girls, Marie and Pauline, each weighed 3 pounds; the boys, Sophia and Alice, weighed in at 3 pounds 6 ounces and 2 pounds 6 ounces respectively.

Mrs. Tandzenzi is the mother of 10 other children, including two sets of triplets.

Dale Sentenced On Guilty Plea To Five Charges

EAST ST. LOUIS (AP)—Evan R. Dale, former boss of the AFL Laborers Union in southern Illinois, pleaded guilty today to five federal charges against him and withdrew an appeal from a previous conviction and a 15-year prison term.

Dale entered the pleas before U. S. Dist. Judge Fred L. Wham and was sentenced to terms ranging from 5 to 15 years on each of the five charges.

U. S. Atty. Clifford Raemer said the sentences imposed today would be served concurrently with the first 15-year sentence imposed for labor racketeering and a 10-year sentence for tax evasion imposed at Springfield earlier this week.

The pleas left only two federal counts standing against Dale. One, returned at East St. Louis, charged him with extorting $66,941 from Illinois contractors. The other, returned in St. Louis, charged labor racketeering in Missouri.

Raemer said disposition of the remaining indictment in Illinois was under advisement.

The sentences imposed today were 10 years on one charge of evading $4,489 in income taxes, 5 years for extorting $2,500 from contractors, 5 years on another $2,000 extortion, 15 years on a charge of conspiring to extort $33,000 and 10 years on a second conspiracy indictment.

Raemer said Dale would begin serving his sentences, which in effect will be a total of 15 years, immediately.

President Laughs At Speculation in Second Term Remark

WITH PRESIDENT EISENHOWER IN NEW HAMPSHIRE (AP)—President Eisenhower stood beneath one of America's ancient and historic sites—the "Great Stone Face"—high in New Hampshire's White Mountains today and solemnly proclaimed that only a strong nation could properly cooperate with other nations in the cause of true world peace.

"Only strength can cooperate," the President told an audience estimated at 2,500 persons at Franconia Notch. The ceremony commemorated the 150th anniversary of the discovery of "The Old Man of the Mountains," a huge face-like projection of granite atop Cannon Mountain.

"Weakness cannot cooperate, but can only beg," the President said. He stressed his contention that a much needed source of national strength is understanding the aspirations and needs of other nations rather than concentrating on material gains at home.

Has Good Laugh

Before speaking at Franconia Notch, Mr. Eisenhower stopped at Lincoln, home town of Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President, to pay special tribute to the No. 2 man in the White House.

Meantime, from staff members came word that Mr. Eisenhower laughed "uproariously" this morning when he read the various newspaper interpretations of his teasing remarks Thursday about a possible second term.

The President was joined at Profile Lake beneath the majestic "Great Stone Face" by Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks and Robert Cutler, Boston banker and former White House liaison man for security affairs.

Mr. Eisenhower spoke from a blue-canopied platform built at the base of the Cannon Mountain and he devoted much of his speech to wondering what the "old man" would think of world and national affairs today.

The President said he felt the old man would think more highly of such things as the words of the preamble to the Declaration of Independence which assured Americans of the right to pursuit of happiness, than he would think of the change in speed from the days of the horse to the jet plane.

The President pointed out that the declaration did not guarantee to give Americans happiness, but merely the right to pursuit of happiness.

Peace Is Happiness

He said this country knew that one ingredient of happiness was peace.

"We know we don't want to send our boys into the armed services to be sent off to foreign lands," he said. "We don't want to con-

May Yet Reap Whirlwind

Editorial By Bruce Glossat
President Juan Peron of Argentina evidently was saved from political ruin this time by the loyalty of his army—a loyalty he had taken drastic measures to insure. In the view of experts, he may not fare so well in a future revolt.

It is almost axiomatic to say that a dictator who crushes a rebellion emerges stronger than ever. Some of the best judges of Argentine affairs say that probably this will be the result of Peron's successful routing of the revolutionaries who touched off the biggest uprising of his regime.

But these same judges believe that Peron has been weakened in the long run, and partly on government-dominated labor unions managed by his stooges. Of these, the army is, of course, the most crucial element.

Peron's power today rests partly on the army, partly on a strong police force, and partly on government-dominated labor unions managed by his stooges. Of these, the army is, of course, the most crucial element.

It was unlikely any revolt would succeed which did not enlist the army. This newest insurgency did not. As nearly as can be figured, navy and air force men led the assault. The navy was the principal factor, but the use of jet planes in one of the two bombing attacks on the government palace indicated the cooperation of at least some air force personnel.

At first glance the loyalty of the army might seem utterly discouraging to any future prospects of removing Peron. But examination discloses that this loyalty may be a fragile thing.

To insure it, Peron has eliminated many officers who might conceivably threaten his position. He has scattered army units about the country, and kept them separated from their munitions and motor fuel.

But these are not insurmountable obstacles to revolt if a true underground movement should develop within the army. The elements of successful rebellion exist within this force and the trained activists of his labor stooges.

Peron's campaign against the Catholic church, to which the great majority of Argentines belong, may contain the seeds of his ultimate downfall. In taking on the powerful adversary, he may have bit off more than he can chew.

If time shows that he has thus overreached himself, that the people do not support this bold bid for absolute power, then the army may take its cue and the dictator may at long last be crushed.

Men who know Argentina well believe this will happen. Free men elsewhere in the world, anxious for the strengthening of liberty in every corner of the globe, hope it will.

What Do They Mean, Summit?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
Secretary Hobby Sits On Resignation While GOP Fidgets; Smelly Cheese Scandal Probed By House Committee; Big Producers Profit By Cheese Subsidies.

WASHINGTON. — Now that the GOP National committee has greased the skids for Secretary of Health Oveta Culp Hobby and even picked her successor, it can't get the obstinate lady to resign.

Her patient replacement, Marlon Folsom, is waiting like a gentleman for her to make the first move. But she won't budge.

Though she originally threatened to resign over the Salk mix-up, she has exercised her feminine prerogative to change her mind and now seems determined to end the Salk battle through to the end.

Mrs. Hobby first spoke to the White House about resigning because the polio problem hit the headlines. She gave her husband's ill health as her excuse. Then she suddenly found herself in the middle of the Salk whirl.

After a presidential scolding for her handling of the problem, she burned to a crisp and threatened to go back to Texas. Her advisers warned, however, that it would look bad for her to resign under fire. So she stuck to her desk. But every time she opened her mouth, the politicians at GOP headquarters winced.

"She blandly belittled the Salk problem when the papers were reporting children dying from bad vaccine," complained one top Republican. "Now she associates those who are against socialized medicine with the whole Salk mess. Before you know it, she'll have people believing maybe socialized medicine is a good thing."

Meanwhile, she is brushing off the polite suggestions from Republican headquarters that she ought to resign right away for her husband's sake.

CHEESE SCANDAL

It hasn't been advertised as part of the GOP farm program, but Secretary of Agriculture Benson has been paying cheese subsidies not to the dairy farmers but to the cheese manufacturers.

This novel "farm support" program has enriched a few big producers, while the farmers have collected next to nothing.

Yet the whole idea of price supports is to help the farmers.

The great cheese scandal was uncovered by House investigators, who have been mousing around in the government's cheese. As an example of what has been going on, they reported in a confidential memo to the House Government Operations committee:

"During March, 1954, the Commodity Credit Corporation purchased approximately 180 million pounds of cheese at 37 cents per pound. In April about 90 million pounds of this cheese was resold to the original manufacturers at 34 1/4 cents a pound. Thus the loss to the government on the purchase resale transaction was apparently $2.5 million."

In other words, the cheese producers bought their own cheese back from the government and made nearly three cents per pound profit on the deal within a month. What's even more shocking, the cheese never so much as left the producers' warehouses. The whole transaction was carried out on paper, and the manufacturers collected their profit without moving a pound of cheese.

Like most other farm policies, the cheese program was adopted with a minimum of advice from farmers but after careful consultation with the cheese industry. In other words, this plan to enrich the cheese manufacturers came largely from the manufacturers. One of those consulted, for example, was Carl Berst, whose big Wisconsin cheese company promptly sold 5,275,116 pounds of cheese to the government, then bought it back for more than $150,000 profit.

RIPE PROFITS

Borden and Kraft executives were also consulted in advance about the cheese subsidy program. Afterward, investigators report, these two cheese giants together made over a million dollars on one transaction.

For example, Kraft Foods sold 29,164,860 pounds of cheese to the government in March, 1954, then immediately contracted to buy it all back. Lakeshore Martin Co. of Plymouth, Wis., a Borden subsidiary, pulled the same deal for 11,189,248 pounds of cheese. Other Kraft and Borden subsidiaries also turned a neat profit at the taxpayers' expense.

Still other companies that collected huge farm benefits include: W. S. Pope and Sons, Philadelphia; Tully Cheese Co., Green Bay, Wis.; L. D. Schreiber and Co., Carthage, Mo.; Land O' Lakes Creameries, Plymouth, Wis.; Central Cheese Co., Marshfield, Wis.; Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., Green Bay, Wis.; Superior Cheese Co., Green Bay, Wis.; and Tillamook County Creamery Association, Tillamook, Ore.

For the one month alone, 108 companies sold, then repurchased 88,639,277 pounds of cheese. Each pound cost the taxpayers three cents and, incidentally, raised the price of cheese so the same taxpayers will have to pay more for their cheese at the corner grocery.

Rule Passport Is a Right, Not Privilege

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The State Department was prepared today to appeal to the Supreme Court a ruling by the U. S. Court of Appeals that a passport is a constitutional right and not a privilege to be granted or withheld at the department's discretion.

The historic and sweeping ruling, handed down Thursday, stripped the secretary of state and his passport division of the almost unlimited power they have had over issuance of passports. It also put the department on notice that U. S. courts are going to take a close look at decisions to bar American citizens from travel abroad.

The court held that an American's constitutional right to a passport cannot be refused except for valid reasons involving this nation's relations with foreign countries.

This was the first time a court has ruled that a passport is a right and not a privilege.

The Appeals Court's landmark decision was on a case brought by Max Schachtman, of Garden City, N. Y., chairman of the Independent Socialist League. He had been denied a passport because the league is on the attorney general's list of subversive organizations.

The court said this wasn't reason enough, that Schachtman has denied the organization is subversive and claims he wants to go to Europe only for business reasons that would not hurt the prestige or damage the interests of the United States.

The State Department was expected to appeal the decision since government attorneys have taken the position for years that the secretary of state has complete control over passports and can deny them at his discretion.

Republican Editor Says Legislators Listen to Powell

Legislators still listen to Paul Powell when he speaks in the Illinois House of Representatives, says J. Emil Smith, editor of the Republican Illinois State Journal, Springfield.

Writing in his column "Making Conversation," Editor Smith recently had this to say:

"Probably the most listened to speaker on the floor of the house of representatives is Paul Powell, Democrat, of Vienna. Members cup their hands to their ears so they won't miss a Powellism. Those representatives who pride themselves on being politicians rather than statesmen chuckled to their heart's content recently as a string of dry humor flowed from Powell as he fought a bill to permit secret primaries.

The proposal would have given a voter three choices. He could ask for a Democratic ballot, a Republican ballot or he could ask for a ballot which listed the candidates of both parties but restricting voting to one party without disclosing whether any party affiliation on the past of the voter.

"The House Elections Committee had put a 'do not pass' on the bill and when the committee report was read Rep. G. William Horsley (R-Springfield), one of the measure's co-sponsors, moved that the house nonconcur. It was on a motion by Rep. Joseph De la Cour (D-Chicago) that the Horsley motion be tabled, that Powell spoke.

"This bill is the same as wearing a hood when you go to church on Sunday so that nobody will know which church you went to," said Powell. "This would destroy the two party system. Democrats are proud to be Democrats and Republicans are proud to be Republicans. Sure they are politicians. And what we need today are more politicians and people trained to be politicians."

"The De la Cour tabling motion carried 111 to 28 and the bill may now be considered dead."

In ancient times, people blamed their colds on such things as the influence of comets.

Illinois Group Opposes Vaccine During Summer

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Polio Advisory committee has stuck by its opposition to any more Salk vaccine inoculations this summer, despite a federal statement that the vaccine is "safe and effective."

The committee, appointed by State Health Director Roland R. Cross, Thursday night repeated its recommendation against shots between July 1 and Nov. 1 in Illinois.

It also repeated opposition to shots between now and July 1 in areas where the polio rate is high.

The committee took its stand a few hours after the federal department of health announced it still believes in the safety and efficiency of the vaccine.

Dr. Ruth E. Church, acting chairman of the committee, said the group stuck by its recommendations because of "reservations" about the quality of the vaccine based on tests made by the committee's technical advisory staff.

It also was revealed at the meeting that the Illinois Medical Society has sent notices to all doctors that no Salk inoculations should be administered between July 1 and Nov. 1. The ban should continue into November if there is still a high polio rate, the society said.

In Springfield, Cross said he would not comment on the advisory committee's recommendations "until I have an opportunity to study them thoroughly."

Peace Only in Strength: Ike template the horrors of a new war.

He said America's aim was "a peaceful world in which we can continue to develop."

The President's folksy tour of New England had attracted sudden new interest in view of his hint that he just might run for re-election in 1956.

The President started the political speculation at a brief stop late Thursday in Concord. The hint that he might seek another term came as he spoke before an historic joint session of the New Hampshire Legislature convened in a tree lined plaza before Concord's antique statehouse.

His chief assistant, Sherman Adams, whose Lincoln, N. H., home was on the President's morning itinerary, lectured the White House staff every morning on the wonderful advantages of his home state, the President said with a broad grin.

New Hampshire Lectures
"People often ask me what my ideas are on how long I would like a residence in 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue (the White House address). My own thought is they should ask how long it is going to take Governor Adams to finish his series of lectures on New Hampshire, because he doesn't seem to be a third of the way through them yet."

Reporters scrambled through the mathematics of the President's stay in the White House. Mr. Eisenhower has been president 29 months. He has 19 months to serve in his current term. Another term would add 48 months to his stay at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Adams guffawed when reporters asked him how long it would take him to finish his lectures on New Hampshire.

The entire development, although it came in the form of a jest, was considered surprising, especially since Mr. Eisenhower had asked reporters not to question him about his political future until next year.

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A South Korean "Casanova," who proudly admitted to charges of seducing 70 women, may escape trial because none of his alleged victims are willing to testify against him, police said today.

The man was arrested last month. The trial was originally scheduled for this week but has been postponed in view of the difficulty in finding a complainant.

Dulles Outlines Price Of Ending Cold War

it stands condemned by the United Nations. It promoted aggression in Indochina and used force and the threat of force to support its ambitions in the Taiwan, Formosa area.

"Recent developments, including the influence of the Bandung conference, suggest that the immediate threat of war may have receded. Let us pray that this is so. But the situation in Asia remains one that cannot be regarded with equanimity."

As for communism in general, Dulles said:

"Also we cannot forget the existence of that apparatus known as international communism. It constitutes a worldwide conspiracy to bring into power a form of government which never in any country, at any time, was freely chosen by the people, and which destroys the reality of independence."

Dulles reminded that in Caracas last year, the Organization of American States held international communism to be "alien intervention" in the internal affairs of nations, and a threat to international peace and security.

"This threat should end," he declared.

The Arms Race
As for arms, Dulles pointed out that the United States proposed nearly 10 years ago to internationalize atomic energy. Had this proposal been accepted then, he said, it would have prevented the "present competitive production" of atomic weapons.

"This unprecedented proposal was made at a time when the United States was sole possessor of this weapon," he pointedly reminded Molotov. "It was rejected."

Dulles noted that the Soviet Union recently indicated it might be prepared "seriously" to consider disarmament. He added:

"Let us hope that these indications can be translated into concrete action making possible limitations of armament which are in fact dependable and not a fraud."

Dulles said the United States asks no nation to do "what it is not prepared to do itself." He reaffirmed that the United States will base its policies on the U. N. charter and will support other countries that do so as well.

He ended his speech, repeating a pledge made by President Eisenhower before the U. N. on opening day last Monday:

"So believing and so motivated, the United States will leave no stone unturned to work for peace. We shall reject no method, however novel, that holds out any hope, however faint, for a just and lasting peace."

Truman Attends Tonight

Dulles was the last of the Big Four foreign ministers to address the U. N. meeting here. France's foreign minister, Antoine Pinay, spoke Thursday, giving assurance that his country will remain a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Russia had one more chance to speak in rebuttal against the West. Ukrainian Foreign Minister L. F. Palamarchuk was scheduled to address the afternoon session today.

Former President Harry S. Truman attends a special session tonight. Molotov scheduled a dinner party immediately after the meeting.

Block Father's Attempt To Give Eyes of Dead Daughter to Blind

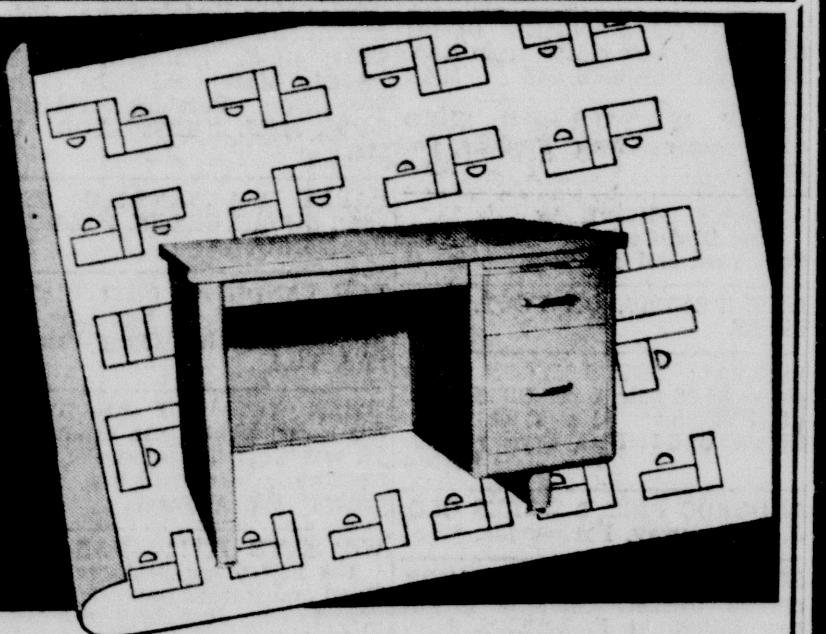

CHICAGO (AP)—A father said today that the law blocked him when he tried to give the eyes of his newly-dead daughter to the blind "so that someone else might see."

Andrew Costikyan was close to tears as he told how he tried to have the eyes of his 2-year-old daughter removed a few hours after she was killed in a car crash Thursday.

He said a coroner's physician refused to allow the operation, telling him he would "regret" it later. The physician's objections blocked the operation for more than 12 hours, Costikyan said. After that, the eyes were of no value to an eye bank.

Costikyan, whose wife and 5-year-old son were also severely injured in Thursday's crash, insisted that he knew what he was doing when he asked to have the eyes of little Carol removed.

SAME PLAN AS LAST YEAR— No. 2 Basis market wheat taken from farmer direct from combine. It is dumped at elevator. This Fall at seeding time seed wheat (several varieties) can be picked up from our warehouse bushel for bushel. The cost is fifty cents in than needed for seed, surplus will be bought at market price.

Seed is selected from reliable farmers. It will be double cleaned, of good germination, noxious weed and onion free, treated for weevil, and put up in 1 1/2 bu. bags.

This plan relieves a farmer of germination, variety, weevil, and cleaning worries and is cheaper than can be done on the farm.

Pass Bill for 56-Hour Week For Firemen

SPRINGFIELD — Both houses of the Illinois Legislature Thursday passed bills to give firemen in downstate cities of more than 12,000 population a maximum 56-hour work week.

The House passed its bill 94-11 and the Senate an identical version 36-15. The bills were passed despite arguments of opponents that the Legislature was taking back part of the revenue cities might get from new city sales and utility receipts taxes being given them by the Legislature.

In the Senate's busiest day of the session, the upper chamber passed some 50 bills and sent them to the House, killed a dozen other measures, and then held a night session to 11 p. m. CDT to advance about 200 House bills to passage stage.

One of the bills beaten by the Senate would have permitted limited medical practice by osteopaths. Sen. Clyde V. Trager (R-Peoria), a sponsor, said such a law was "long overdue."

But opponents said the bill, to permit use of drugs and medicines and minor surgery in osteopathic treatment, would "lower medical standards."

The Senate then passed a bill authorizing an osteopath and a chiropractor to serve on the committee on medical practice and midwives in the Department of Registration and Education, along with five doctors of medicine already on the committee.

Among bills passed by the Senate were measures to: Set up a disability fund under workmen's compensation law to reimburse employers who pay benefits to handicapped persons who may be injured in work.

Create a commission to study economic patterns and population movements in Illinois.

Make it a misdemeanor to offer or accept bribes in connection with sports events.

Appropriate $44,000 for the continuation of experiments in underground storage of surface water being carried on by the Illinois Water Survey.

Create a commission to investigate hospitalization of paraplegics, and see if the civilian paraplegics can be cared for in military hospitals.

Three Arraigned Here On Federal Moonshine Charges

Three men have been arraigned by U. S. Commissioner W. W. Damron this week on "moonshine" charges.

Commissioner Damron stated today Frank Kennedy and Ovid Powell were being held for federal grand jury action in connection with the operation of a still. Elmer Foreman of Golconda is charged with the possession of untaxed spirits.

Kennedy, who is held in the Benton jail, is charged with the operation of a still in the basement of his home in White county, about five miles from Norris City. Powell, held in the same case, has been in the Shawneetown jail, but was to be taken to Benton this afternoon.

The raid on the Kennedy home was led by Eugene J. Healey of the federal alcoholic division and it is said a large quantity of sugar, corn, copper tubing, barrels, a cooker, fireplace, funnels, distilled spirits and mash were found.

Foreman was arrested by state police near Golconda and charged with drunken driving, then brought to Harrisburg when a quantity of "mule" was found in his automobile and a warrant was issued charging him with possession of untaxed spirits.

His bond was set at $1,000 and he also is in the jail at Benton, it was said.

The three men will be called before the federal grand jury, which convenes Monday, Commissioner Damron stated today.

Auto Traveling 100 Miles an Hour Hits Truck, 6 Dead

ROCKVILLE, Ind. — An auto travelling 100 miles an hour slammed into a semi-trailer truck near here. Flames burst from the mangled wreckage, turning it into a funeral pyre for six persons Thursday night.

A witness said the car was going about 100 miles an hour at the time of impact, and the force of the collision jammed the car underneath the front of the truck.

Firemen from three communities waded through the wreckage to put out the blaze. The bodies—two of them children—were so entangled with the wreckage that the auto had to be pulled out from under the truck before they could be removed.

The dead were the truck driver, Wayne Max Cain, Crawfordville, Ind., and three men and two children from Hammond, Ind. These were identified as Carl Barnett, 34, the car's driver, his 6-year-old son and 7-year-old daughter, a man believed to be Barnett's father, and a man believed to be a relative.

present by the Hart Department store.

President of Harrisburg National
As the years went by he acquired additional business property around the square and extended his farming interests. In 1910 he became a director in the old Saline Trust and Savings bank which later became the Harrisburg National bank, and in 1945 he became president of the Harrisburg National bank, an office he held the rest of his life.

Mr. Pruett built the Pruett garage building on West Locust street, now occupied by Hancock's Excel Super Market. With his only son, John H. Pruett, as partner, he operated the Buick-Cadillac agency there until 1940.

Since 1940 a business office has been maintained in the Midkiff building, which the Pruett also own.

Mrs. Pruett died on July 2, 1952. Mr. Pruett's two brothers, Albert and Frank, who also became well known business men in this city, preceded him in death.

He leaves his son, John H. Pruett and one niece, Mrs. J. M. (Margaret) Hart. The former lived at home and had been very attentive to his father during his long illness. The latter lives on a farm east of Harrisburg, and she and her family are also widely known in southern Illinois.

The body of Mr. Pruett was returned to the residence today from the Harrisburg funeral home and his funeral will be held at the residence, Saturday at 3 p. m.

The Rev. Earl Phillips, Methodist minister and family friend from McLeansboro, will conduct his funeral service. Burial will be at Sunset Hill cemetery.

Young women employed at the Harrisburg National bank will serve as flower girls and the pallbearers will be Frank P. Parker, John R. Jackson, Kenneth Capel, I. M. Taylor, Harker Miley and Troy Hart.

Wheat Growers Vote Saturday On Crop Quotas

WASHINGTON — Wheat growers in 36 states will vote Saturday whether to accept government marketing quotas for their 1956 crop. The outcome may determine whether there will be unrestricted wheat production in 1956 which would add to an already huge surplus.

If quotas are approved by two-thirds of those voting, producers in the 36 commercial wheat states who stay within the acreage allotted for their farmers will be eligible for price support loans at $1.81 a bushel. This would be 76 per cent of parity.

Those who exceed their acreage allotment will be subject to marketing penalties of 45 per cent of parity price on wheat grown on their excess land.

Crop Restriction
If quotas are not approved, present law provides for support at 50 per cent of parity, or $1.19 a bushel for producers who stay within their acreage allotments. If the quotas are voted out, farmers can exceed their allotment without penalty. But if they do exceed acreage allotments, they will get no price support loans. Under law, the wheat crop is restricted to 55 million acres.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson has called the voting proposition a "difficult choice." He has not asked farmers either to vote for or against quotas. Earlier this week he told a meeting of the National Association of Television and Radio Farm Directors he would suggest a new wheat price support plan to Congress if farmers reject quotas. He did not elaborate.

The department's wheat experts say the voting "will be close." Approximately 950,000 farmers are eligible to vote during 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. local time in the polling booths maintained by county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committees.

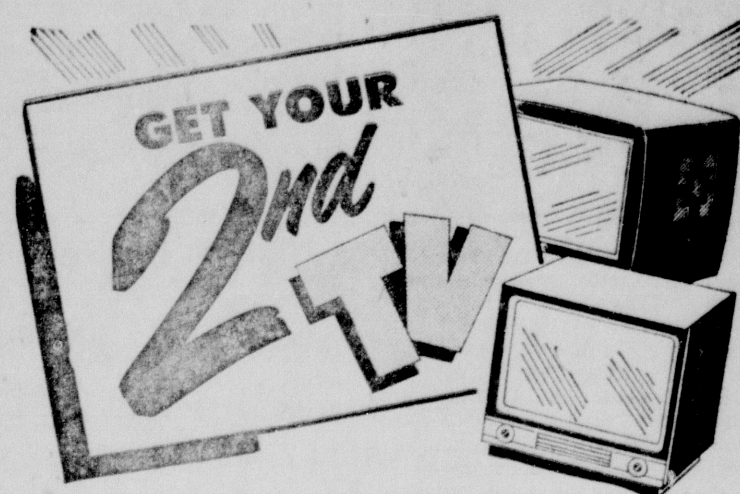

To be eligible, a farmer must grow more than 15 acres of wheat.

Approve Referendum To Ban Motor Fuel Tax for Other Purposes

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House Thursday voted to present at a 1956 referendum a proposed new constitutional article requiring that all motor vehicles and fuel taxes be spent only for highway purposes.

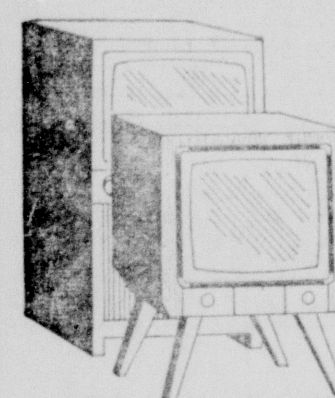

The House sent the resolution for the constitutional addition to the Senate by a 114-5 vote. The plan to ban the diversion of motor vehicle tax funds for other purposes has been considered by each of the past several General Assemblies.

Under present law, use of the motor vehicle license and fuel tax funds for purposes other than paying off certain relief bonds is prohibited but sponsors of the resolution want to make the prohibition part of the constitution to prevent future diversions.

Death Has 3 Lives

by Brett Halliday

Copyright 1955 by Brett Halliday

Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Frightened by threats, Lucy Hamilton does not tell until too late that she has harbored a fugitive in her apartment. By that time Private Detective Mike Shayne, her boss, had forcibly ejected a policeman who tried to make an illegal search. When Mike learns that Jack Bristow, the fugitive, is wanted for murder, he drives to the scene of the crime to investigate.

VII

Shayne shook his head. "Heard a radio broadcast and was just driving by." He dropped his voice. "You know the name of the girl that got it?"

"Heard someone say they called her Trixie." The policeman said. "One of your girl friends?"

Shayne grinned. "Trixie, eh? No friend of mine. How did it happen?"

"Nobody knows much, I guess. Another girl found her dead about an hour ago."

A squat figure in plain clothes stepped out the front door and lit a cigarette. He said, "There's Bentley. Mind if I ask him about it?"

Detective Bentley scowled as Shayne walked up. "What's on your mind, Shamus?"

"Used to know a girl who lived here," Shayne told him mildly. "I hoped nothing had happened to her."

"This one is new, I guess. Only been here a few weeks. Name of Trixie." The detective drew in a deep gulp of smoke and exhaled slowly. "Not more'n 20. Supposed to be occupying the room alone, but looks like a man was with her."

"He do it?"

"Nobody knows from nothing. He's missing. May be the one a taxi driver reported picking up in front of here who acted hurt and left blood in the cab when he got out. Chief's in here now. You got any ideas?"

Michael Shayne shook his head slowly. "Think she shot the guy while he was choking her?"

"Nothing to show it," grunted Bentley. "No one heard a shot and no evidence a gun was fired in the room."

Shayne bid him goodnight and crossed the lawn to walk toward his car.

As he neared the corner, he heard the light, fast click of high heels on the sidewalk behind him. He crossed the street slowly and she came up behind him as he reached the shadows on the other side. A low, tremulous voice said, "Wait a minute, Mister," and Shayne turned to see a small, pinched face with big eyes.

She was thin and young and shabbily dressed in a gray sweater and short tweed skirt, and thin fingers clutched tightly at his forearm as she said, "I saw you talking to the cops there. What's happened?"

Shayne said, "Here's my car." He opened the door and put a big hand under her elbow to urge her in. "Why don't we go some place and talk about it?"

"Tell me one thing first." Her voice was fierce. "Who was it? I got to know."

Shayne closed her door firmly and went around to slide under the wheels beside her. "A girl who called herself Trixie was strangled there tonight."

"Oh!" She exhaled a great sigh of relief and slumped limply back against the cushion. "Thank God, Mister. I just didn't know. You see, I'm a stranger here. Just hit town tonight. I didn't know what to do." Her voice cracked on the final words and she compressed her lips tightly.

Shayne started the motor and the big car pulled ahead smoothly. "Where are you from?"

"New Orleans. I hitch-hiked all the way. Look, Mister, I'm just about nuts. I don't know what to do. I was to meet my husband there tonight, see? We fixed it up two days ago. I had that address, and he promised to meet me there outside if I made it by tonight. So when I got there, there was cops all around. I was afraid to ask questions, and I just didn't know. If he was there waiting and saw the cops, he'd be blown. How'll I ever find him now?" Tears ran down her pinched cheeks and she made no move to wipe them away.

Shayne turned south on an avenue without saying anything, and stopped in front of a lunchroom a few blocks away. He said gruffly,

"Let's go in and talk it over. Maybe I can think of some way to help."

She lazily let him help her out, and went in beside him. There were a few men at the bar, an empty booth at the rear. Shayne steered her into it, told the waiter to bring him a double brandy and ice-water, and looked inquiringly at the girl across from him.

She looked doubtful and frightened and said, "I don't drink much."

She was under 20, Shayne thought, obviously undernourished and anemic. She would be quite pretty, he thought, with the hollows in her cheeks filled out, and her gray eyes were nice though now they were hauntingly reminding of those of a wounded fawn.

He said, "Better have something to eat first. Bring us a menu, waiter."

"If I could just have a sandwich," she said doubtfully. "And

'Sport Shirt' Dance At Elks Club Saturday Night

All members of Harrisburg Elks Lodge No. 1058, and their ladies, are invited to a "sport shirt" dance tomorrow night at the club, with music by John Richard Small and his trio, featuring vocalist Sherry Omer.

There will be music in the lounge from 8:30 to 9:30, and dancing upstairs from 10:30 until 1:00. The dance is part of the entertainment committee's program to provide social activities during the ordinarily inactive summer months, and a big turnout is hoped for to start the summer season. If the dance is a success, similar "sport shirt" dances will be held at least once each month during the summer.

maybe a glass of milk. But I'm flat broke," she went on fiercely with a swift pride in her voice. "and I can't pay you back until I find my husband, and I don't want you to be thinking . . ."

Shayne said, "I'm not thinking anything. How about hot roast beef . . . a couple of them," he told the waiter when she nodded eagerly. "and a big glass of milk." (To Be Continued)

They're making it the

BIGGEST-SELLING BUICK OF ALL TIME

Maybe you'd better see for yourself why folks just won't do without this great car

PEOPLE say success makes success—but we say people make success, and how!

It's people—just like you—who are snowballing Buick sales this year to an all-time peak.

It's people—just like your neighbors down the street—who are snapping up these gorgeous new Buicks almost as fast as we get them from the factory, and causing Buick production to climb to new levels every month, to handle the unparalleled demand.

And it's people—just about from every walk of life—who keep Buick sales soaring without letup—and who have moved Buick more solidly than ever into the charmed circle of America's top best sellers.

But why? Why this phenomenal swing to Buick on the part of people who can choose any new car?

Because Buick's a buy—definitely.

And because it's a bold beauty that catches the eye and holds it—that's for sure.

And certainly because it's supremely level of ride—and a sweet joy to handle—and a mighty bundle of high-voltage V8 power to melt away the miles and the high hills.

But most of all, because Buick this year is a performer like no earth-bound vehicle ever was before . . .

Because Buick—and only Buick—has the airplane-principled magic of Variable Pitch Dynaflo® where you switch the pitch for big gas savings in cruising—or for whip-quick getaway response and acceleration when you need a sudden safety-surge.

It's sheer thrill, and pure pleasure, and a big boon to your gasoline budget—and you really ought to try it.

Come visit us soon—this week, at the latest—and see for yourself why this is the car folks just won't do without—the biggest-selling Buick of all time.

*Dynaflo Drive is standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Legion to Play at Newburgh, Ind.
The Harrisburg Legion nine will make a trip into Indiana Sunday to meet the Newburgh Merchants of that city in a baseball game. The locals are hoping for more competition than they encountered in their meeting with the Evansville Mohawks here last Sunday. When, fortunately, a thunderstorm interrupted further proceedings, the Legion was lambasting the visitors by a 21 to 0 count and Buzz Kennedy, the locals' hurler, had failed to allow the Mohawks a safety. Only five and a half innings had been played at the time of the rain. Flash Griffiths, the Legion shortstop, was leading the hitting department at the time with a homer, triple and three singles in five tries.
Making the trip for the Legion to Newburgh will be Ronnosky, McNew, Dallas, Odle, Griffiths, Galle, Williams, Dailey, May, Elms, Parton and Kennedy and Loeudon. Players will meet at the park diamond by 10 o'clock in order to be ready to play at Newburgh by 2 p. m. DST.

Harry Grayson's
SCOREBOARD
Fleck Planned Open Victory As High School Champion

Jack Fleck ... dead to the pin.

Jack Fleck, the inscrutable lowan who dropped out of the clouds to win the United States Open, made that his goal as a high school champion.
Fleck, 32, in an old-fashioned playing professional in several ways, not the least of which is the fact that he is up from the ranks of the caddies.
Representing Davenport, young Fleck won the first Iowa State high school championship in 1939 and immediately turned professional.
Fleck, 32, is an old-fashioned of importance before turning in the incredible rounds that tied and topped Ben Hogan on the exacting Lake Course of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, but the burning ambition was there all the while.
Hogan was Fleck's model, by the way, and indicative of the surprise titleholder's fondness for golf was the naming of his four-and-a-half-year-old son, Craig. Fleck wanted the youngster named Snead Hogan, and when his pretty wife, Lynn, overruled that, he settled for Craig, after Craig Wood.
IN PERSONAL APPEARANCE.
Fleck perhaps best can be described as a bigger edition of Hogan. And in the Open at least, the modest chap who has the corn belt excited was not unlike the matchless Hogan on the course. Standing six-foot-one, he is a slightly gaunt, swarthy, sharp-featured man with dark brown hair.
Fleck may not have accomplished anything in the past, but shows every promise of doing a lot of things in the future, for he possesses a sweet swing. He bends his knees a little and graduates his swing into a pronounced follow through.
Fleck revealed one of his finer attributes in the final round and play-off for the Open, which he seemed to take in stride, like any Saturday afternoon golfer.
He played as though he were in a trance, and not even Hogan ever found a better way to concentrate.
Fleck, a friendly, mild-mannered fellow, is a bug on physical condition. He doesn't smoke and takes nothing stronger than ice cream and tea. He never sweats.

He has the perfect golfing temperament. He doesn't bubble over, nor is he any part of an introvert. He's well balanced—in between.
FLECK PERHAPS HAS made $7,500 a year. He lives just like anybody on your block—in a modest home and driving a middle class car.
Fleck, as you have heard, is the pro at pebbled municipal courses in Davenport, that hustling city of 80,000 on the Mississippi. His missus was up at 5:30 a. m. to open the golf shop at the Credit Island course the day her now illustrious husband sealed the heights. A brother-in-law, Curly Wayne, is his assistant and the pro at the Duck Creek course, so you see, municipal golf in Davenport is a family affair.
Two years ago, Fleck was offered a job at a private club in the Quad Cities, which have a population of 240,000, the other towns being Rock Island, Moline and East Moline, but the new Open champion turned it down to tour as much as he could and work on his game.
Fleck didn't make expenses on the tour, but the result was unfolded on the trying Lake Course of the Olympic Club of San Francisco. One of Jack Fleck's courses is the Credit Island, but he no longer has to put anything on the cuff.

Jukes, Ronnie's, Pankey's, Nick's Kiwanis Winners
By David Nelson
The Mitch Golish Jukes downed the Wildcats, 15-4; Ronnie's Studio defeated Walker's Cleaners, 10-3; Pankey's Bakery edged the Cubs, 11-8, and Nick's Cafe beat Sugar Creek, 14-1, in Kiwanis league games played Thursday.
The Jukes exploded with seven unanswered runs in the fourth inning to break their game with the Wildcats wide open, as they scored seven more in the fifth to win, 15-4. Donnie Pickford led the team as he pitched a five-hitter and collected two safeties himself. Schureman, Jahn, Furlong, Beggs, and Rauh rounded out the Jukes' hitting column with one safe blow apiece. Larry Henshaw led the Wildcats at bat with a triple and a single, while Langford, J. B. Henshaw and Agin had one hit each for the losers. E. Henshaw was the losing pitcher.
Ronnie's Studio scored five runs in the fourth and five in the fifth, after going down in order in the first three innings, to defeat Walker's Cleaners, 10-3. Hatcher, who pitched a no-hitter for the first three innings, allowed seven hits in losing, while Darrel Powell allowed only one hit in the five-inning tie. Powell led the winners at bat with two safeties and Ozee, Dann, Spurlock, Bishop and Trammel collected the balance of Ronnie's hits. Wallace got the only base hit for Walker's.
Pankey's scored four in the third, four in the fourth and three in the fifth to come from behind to win, 11-8. Hunt allowed the Cubs only four hits as his teammates collected 11 safe blows from Gibbons and Rice, opposing pitchers. Hetterscheidt had three hits, Wunderlich and Holland had two hits each, and Potter, Hunt, Owen and Steinborn had one hit each for Pankey's. Winters, Rose, C. Reed and Warmelink had safeties for the losers.
J. B. Henshaw allowed only one hit and slugged a homer and double himself, as he led Nick's to a 14-1 victory over the Sugar Creek. John Pickford, Sugar Creek hurler, allowed six hits and pounded a double for his team's only hit in a losing cause. Ramsey and Jahn rounded out Nick's attack with two safeties each. Nick's sewed up the game in the first with five unearned runs. They then scored two in the second, two in the third, two in the fourth, one in the fifth and two in the sixth. Sugar Creek scored three runs in the third and one in the fifth.
BASEBALL SCHOOL
Batting techniques will take up the greater part of the Kiwanis baseball school Saturday morning. Boys, 8-12, are invited to the town park at 9 a. m. and those from 13-15 at 10:15.

Campanella, Berra Take Lead in All-Star Voting
CHICAGO (AP)—The two veterans who are generally recognized as the greatest catchers in the business took over the vote-getting leadership in the annual All-Star poll today.
Opinions differ on whether Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers or Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees is the better backstopper. For the time being, at least, the fans gave Campanella the nod in today's tabulation.
Roy went into the lead as the most popular player, displacing Detroit's Al Kaline, with a 319,179 vote total. Berra came surging up right behind him with 317,024. Kaline dropped to third, about 4,000 votes ahead of Brooklyn's redoubtable Duke Snider.
The voting to pick the starting lineups for the All-Star teams meeting in Milwaukee July 12 started June 10 and will keep going until midnight next Friday.

Byrd Hurls Shutout for White Sox; Turley Blanks A's, 4-0; Dodgers Win, 7-4
By United Press
Bargain-minded Frank Lane of the White Sox bought a cat in the bag, out he didn't get a cat in the bag. Lane was given a choice by the Baltimore Orioles, who offered him either Harry Byrd or Jim McDonough. The cagey Chicago general manager picked the 30-year-old Byrd and hasn't been sorry since.
On June 18, only 72 hours after the White Sox acquired him, Byrd, a huge disappointment with Baltimore, picked up his first victory in a Chicago uniform by stopping the hard-hitting Yankees. He was even more effective Thursday in hurling a four-hitter that beat the Senators, 7-0.
Byrd's shutout, the 12th of the season for a White Sox pitcher, kept Chicago within two games of the American League pace-setting Yankees, who beat the Athletics, 4-0. The third-place Indians beat the Orioles, 9-2, while the Red Sox climbed to within a single percentage point of fourth place by blanking the Tigers, 7-0.
Dodgers Increase Lead
In the only two National League games scheduled, the Dodgers increased their lead to 14 games with a 7-4 victory over the Cubs while the Cardinals defeated the Phillies, 7-1.
After five losses in a row, Bob Turley of the Yankees got back on the right track with a three-hitter over Kansas City. Turley struck out six, raising his season total to 106, and walked only one in beating Bobby Shantz for his ninth victory. Three walks, Yogi Berra's single and Bill Skowron's ground

Durocher Status To Be Determined At End of Season
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The fate of Manager Leo Durocher with the New York Giants will be determined at the end of the season—after the National league standings are final.
Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, said Thursday night that he won't talk contract with Leo until the season is over.
Stoneham's statement came on the heels of reports that Durocher was on his way out of the Giants' organization and might be slated for the managership of the St. Louis Cardinals.
Stoneham accompanied the Giants here where the team played an exhibition game with the Minneapolis Millers, their American Association farm club.
Bill Rigney, manager of the Millers, had been mentioned as Durocher's successor if Durocher was to be replaced. Stoneham said, however, "Rigney's major league caliber but not quite yet."

Anderson to Resign from Pentagon Post

WASHINGTON — An Ohio industrialist and three Defense Department civilian officials were mentioned today as possible successors to Deputy Defense Secretary Robert B. Anderson who is resigning.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson announced Thursday that Anderson, his chief civilian aide, would resign "in a few months." He said a successor to Anderson would be nominated shortly.

Mentioned as possible successors were Reuben E. Robertson Jr., president of the Champion Paper and Fiber Co., Hamilton, Ohio; Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas; Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott; and Gordon Gray, recently named assistant defense secretary.

Anderson's resignation was the second shakeup this week in the Pentagon's civilian high command. Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens resigned Wednesday and President Eisenhower promptly named Defense Department General Counsel Wilber M. Brucker to succeed him. Anderson, an Eisenhower Democrat from Texas, refused to see reporters after Wilson made his announcement.

Although no reason was given for Anderson's resignation, there have been published reports that he once expected to succeed Wilson as top man in the Defense Department.

There also have been reports that Anderson's business associates want him to return to Texas. Before joining the government, he was general manager of the Waggoner estate, a vast ranching and oil empire with headquarters at Vernon, Tex.

The G. A.'s of the First Baptist church met at the lovely home of Mrs. Morris Hill Monday, June 20. In the absence of the president, Judy Winters presided.

After the guide word, allegiance was said and the G. A. song was sung. They were led in prayer by Mrs. Berniece Hill.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Following the minutes the lesson, "Time to Travel," was given. First on the travel schedule was Nigeria, Africa. Lynda Hill gave an interesting story of Zombo and his father's experiences as a missionary. Another travel took the group to Israel with Linda McNew and then to Panama with Judy Farthing.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Kathleen McNew, Judy Winters, Judy Farthing, Brenda McNew, Linda Hill, Nell Pate and the hostess. Piano solos by Lynda Hill and Brenda McNew were enjoyed.

Record 2,501 Students Enroll at SIU For Summer Session

CARBONDALE, Ill. — A record 2,501 summer session students were registered at Southern Illinois university midway through the first week of the term, the Registrar's Office said today.

They were among the last students who were able to enroll under the current tuition rates. A new tuition schedule, approved by the board of trustees last November will go into effect with the beginning of the fall term.

McGrath compared the 2,501 figure as of June 23 with a total enrollment of 2,310 last summer. It included 369 freshmen, 435 sophomores, 485 juniors, 482 seniors, 446 graduate students, 111 unclassified students, and 173 in the Vocational-Technical Institute.

In September, tuition for state residents will go up from $28 to $34 per quarter or $102 per year, while out-of-state fees will jump from $38 to $64 per quarter or $192 for the year.

About Town And Country

had the purchasing power of a dollar today. Was told that there was a lot of talk about high prices when the cost of Sunday dinners went up to 35 cents. That was considered terrific in those days of long ago.

The Parker House not only enjoyed a good business from Harrisburg people but also was popular with travelling salesmen, who did all travelling by train. At that time there were four passenger trains each day through Harrisburg, two going south and two going north. Also there were "locals", — combination freight and passenger trains, passing through Harrisburg often so the depot was one of the most busy places in town and The Parker House was nearby so was kept busy at all hours.

In addition to being a fine place to stay overnight and the best place to eat, it was also a popular place for parties and big affairs, including weddings. City Patrolman Tom Gram stated today his mother and father were married there and George Davenport recalled that people came from miles around to be married there, "it was considered the thing to do," he said.

Alta Porter, one of my colleagues here at The Register, passed along a couple of stories she remembered hearing about the hotel. She states that chewing gum was rare in those days and a doctor who lived in the hotel parked his gun on the window sill while eating a meal. The waitresses filled it with red pepper and "Grandma" Parker threatened to fire the one who did it, but never found out who was guilty. The girls who "waited table," Alta stated, were Mrs. Albert Pruett, Mrs. A. W. Lewis and Mrs. Frances Dempsey. Another of Alta's stories was that it was necessary to carry water from wells across the street and that "Grandma" Parker went to extremes to conserve it. They would wash peeled potatoes in the water, then strain it and wash dishes. Again it would be strained and used to scrub the kitchen floor. Alta added, "I personally remember Grandma Parker as a pink cheeked, white haired, shawled little old lady with twinkling eyes and a lovable personality."

While talking with Mr. Davenport he also recalled the old mill, a four story building, that was located on East Walnut street, near the site of the R. C. Davenport home and the mill ponds where George Davenport's home is. He said there were two ponds, with a narrow bank separating them and in the winter the boys would ice skate on the ponds. The ambition of every boy, Mr. Davenport recalled, was to be able to race down one pond and jump the bank onto the other pond. "Wood Porter was the only one that ever did it, as I remember," Mr. Davenport said.

Landmarks are torn away, but the memories last forever.
